Narrative Description of Project: The opinion was drafted under the following research questions, such as; What are the differences between the two laws and whether the new law will serve the purpose of justice better than the previous law or not? Comparing the two acts, we have found that there is substantial improvement in terms of structure and clarity, such as; The latter act has a whole different section talking about the 'revocation' of a license, whereas the previous act merely had a subsection. This is likely to increase fluidity and make legal procedures more efficient as the judiciary will now have more information to refer to when judging a case. In simpler terms, there is less ambiguity which is likely to reduce misinterpretation or any kind of exploitation in that sense.
Description of Actual Services Provided by your Staff: Performed in depth research of both laws while drafted our Opinion.

After the Independence of Bangladesh, to meet the socio-economic and geo-political needs, the laws made in English and were adopted through amendment and adaptation, but no effective steps were taken to translate the laws which were made in English. Article 3 of the Constitution of the People's Republic of Bangladesh states that Bangla is the official language of the Republic. Bengali being the national language of Bangladesh, till the enactment of the Bengali Language Act, 1987, there is a constitutional obligation to enact the Bengali text of the existing laws enacted in English in Bangladesh.

Due to various socio-economic reasons, it is difficult for most of the people of Bangladesh to understand the meaning of laws or regulations that are made in English. For that reason, it is a form of responsibility of the government to translate all legal documents into Bengali, including the existing laws, rules and regulations, and make it easy for the public to understand. Also, in order to increase business and foreign investment in the country, it is necessary to translate some laws made in Bengal into English. In order to fulfill the said responsibility under this project, initiatives have been taken to translate selected laws (from English to Bengali and from Bengali to English).
