ADDITIONAL SUBORDINATE LEGISLATION NOTES

The following additional subordinate instruments, though not listed as separate items under the 28 parent Acts above, are cross-referenced and relevant:

A. HIGH COURT RULES relating to multiple parent Acts:

The High Court of Calcutta issued comprehensive rules and circular orders that applied across multiple parent statutes. The Appellate Side Rules, Original Side Rules, and Practice Directions constituted a major body of subordinate legislation governing court procedure.

B. GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT 1935 -- ADAPTATION ORDERS:

The India (Provisional Constitution) Order, 1947 and subsequent adaptation orders under the Indian Independence Act, 1947 formally continued these subordinate legislations in the successor states. For East Bengal/East Pakistan, the "Adaptation of Laws Order, 1947" and "Adaptation of Central Acts and Ordinances Order, 1949" were the key instruments.

C. BENGAL GAZETTE NOTIFICATIONS:

Thousands of individual notifications were published in the Bengal Gazette during 1900-1947, many of which constitute subordinate legislation (declaring applicability of Acts to specific areas, specifying exemptions, fixing rates, appointing authorities, etc.). A complete enumeration would require systematic review of all Bengal Gazette volumes for this period.
